CHARM OF THE PARK

VERDUGO PICNIC GROUNDS ATTRACT THOUSANDS MONTHLY WITH STREAMS AND TREES

'One of Glendale's assets is Verdugo Park. There may be and probably are residents in this city who have never visited that interesting spot which lies within the city limits just west of Verdugo Road, on the way to Montrose; if so they have missed a charming experience. The park lies within view of the mountains—both the Verdugo hills and the Sierras. Toward the east is a beautiful expanse of hillside, with here and there a ranch, orange groves, and further up the hills a profusion of wild flowers and the insistent yucca palm studded over all.

It is indeed a charming spot. In the park itself a magnificent grove of live oaks, ancient and mighty, make a pleasing shade for picnickers of whom there is never any lack. Little wonder that crowds flock to Verdugo Park. To one and all the great attraction even greater than the trees, the flowers and the convenient open air stoves and tables, is the flowing water. Here Verdugo stream rushes down with pleasant murmur beneath the old grove and moves the hearts of the visitors who have flocked to see the well-loved familiar picture of rippling waters and green banks. If Horace thought, in pleasant Italy, that the fountain of Bandusia was worthy of an ode on its charms, how much more worthy is the Verdugo stream that in a dry and thirsty land continues even through the summer months to pour down its Elysian waters for the benefit of Glendale and its visitors.

How much is thought of Glendale's great park may be seen from the list of visiting societies that is partially given below. Mr. W. A. Hail, the present manager of the park, rented it two years ago and ran it to the satisfaction of all. He leased it from the Los Angeles and Arizona Land Company and only ceased his management when the Glendale railway took it into their own hands and put their own manager over it. This arrangement continued for about a year after which the railway company, knowing that the park was a valuable adjunct to their line, in fact its principal feeder during the summer months, determined to get Mr. Hail to run it again. It is therefore in his hands once more and he is making a success of it.

Those who are not in the habit of going about to see what the people of Glendale and their friendly visitors are doing will be surprised to learn that hardly a day passes without some society or club making Verdugo Park the scene of a picnic. The park, which is 40 acres in extent, with at least 27 available for picnic purposes has had its fame spread far and wide in Los Angeles and its vicinity and sometimes as many as 2000 people will be within its pleasant environments in one day. On June 13 one society sent 1700.

Those people love to lie by the cooling stream and gaze on the shading oaks past which its babbling waters leap down.

April 12 was the date of the first picnic this year and from that time onward there has been a steady stream of visitors—always orderly, always cleanly, always leaving with a pleasant memory of Glendale. Mr. Hail is always careful to route the visitors through Glendale along Brand and Glendale Boulevards and the city thus gets some valuable advertising.

As an example of what kind of guests Glendale has in its Verdugo park visitors it may be noted that on June 26, the Southern California Dental Society came in large numbers; June 28 the famous Ebell Club of Los Angeles—a large party in about ten passenger trucks and fifty autos; June 29 the Central Baptist Sunday School of Los Angeles was there to the number of nearly 1000; June 30 the Burbank Sunday School Union visited the park and left with many assurances of returning some day.

In July the park has been visited by the St. John's Episcopal Church Sunday School of Los Angeles, and on the same day, July 1, by the Methodist Sunday School of Glendale. On July 3 a large shirt factory sent its employes to this favored spot, and on the same day the National Dairymen's Association held a great barbecue there.

April 4 Glendale Sanitarium sent its numerous guests out to wander at leisure in the spacious acreage of the park and be lulled to sweet peace by its murmuring stream. April 5 a society of the Christian Young People of Southern California was there in large numbers. So it can be seen that Verdugo Park is doing a large share in the advertising of Glendale and in making its advantages known to outsiders.

Among the adjuncts to the park are its battery of cradle swings dear to the heart of all youngsters; its rope swings beloved by the venturesome and its open air cooking stoves built of stone and capable of accommodating many parties at once, its large dancing pavilion, its baseball grounds, shooting gallery and refreshment booths.

Those who have never visited this attractive spot should go out once and they will be certain to return and bring their families and friends. The Glendale-Montrose Railway runs to the park entrance.

WHERE FRUIT IS DEAR

APRICOTS TEN CENTS DOZEN AND WATERMELONS FIFTY EACH IN MARSHALLTOWN, IA.

Easterners who are skeptical of the advantages of living in California might well take a lesson from the experience of certain visitors to this section who recently paid a visit to Los Angeles and its vicinity, coming also to Glendale, where they professed to see little difference between prices here and those in the part of the country whence they had come.

It is possible that that opinion has been changed since they returned to their own section, as they are confronted there with a "scarcity of fruits" in their local market. The prices, too, are very high compared with those to which they must have become accustomed while in Glendale.

Quoting from the Marshalltown (Iowa) Times-Republican, we find that "a scarcity of fruit is very apparent in the market this week, small quantities of various kinds being available, but nothing in any large amounts." It seems almost a tragedy to learn that "one man got only a market basket full from twenty trees and most of those were taken from a single tree."

Think of the pitiable lot of those who are paying fifty cents apiece for watermelons, when they can be purchased for fifteen cents in Glendale. Then, too, they are imported from Georgia to Iowa.

Worst of all, however, is the pitiful story about apricots. According to the Times-Republican, that cheapest of all California fruits is being retailed in Marshalltown at ten cents a dozen—and that price is considered reasonable. Would not the thrifty housewives of Marshalltown like to live in Glendale, where you can buy a pound for one cent and can get a whole box for twenty cents.

In every possible way California is a more desirable place to live in than the majority of middle west and back east states, from a climatic point of view, and when it comes to a comparison of the prices of living, the advantage still remains with this state. It is likely that those who are prejudiced in favor of their own home states when on a visit to California find when they return that conditions at home are not so roseate when compared with what they remember of the land of the golden west. Any way, that must be the experience of those who are paying ten cents per dozen for apricots when most of us here can have all we want for the asking, and if we desire to dry or preserve them, can purchase all we need for a few cents.

TO REPRESENT CALIFORNIA

Edward Henry Weston of the "Little Studio" in Tropico has been elected to represent the State of California in the Congress of Photographers to be held in conjunction with the 35th annual convention of the Photographer's Association of America at Indianapolis July 19.

The Congress of Photographers is the legislative body of the association composed of a representative from every state in the Union.

That the little city of Tropico is to represent California through Mr. Weston is an interesting news item.

ISAAC CLINE DIES

Isaac Cline, father of Bert L. Cline, 420 W. Ninth street, died yesterday afternoon, at the age of seventy one years. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 2 p. m., from the home of A. M. Cline, 3936 Griffin avenue, Los Angeles. The interment will be at Forest Lawn cemetery. Friends are invited.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Glendale Chamber of Commerce will meet in the Chamber of Commerce building, 1011 West Broadway, tomorrow (Friday) evening at 7:45 o'clock, and in compliance with a ruling of the executive committee the meeting will adjourn at 9:45 without motion. These meetings are growing in interest.

EXPENSE IN BUSINESS

PATRONS SHOULD GIVE CONSIDERATION TO MERCHANTS OF COMMUNITY

In the past the management of the Evening News has mentioned the expense connected with doing business which is the cause of adding to the cost of articles purchased. A few people have formed the habit of passing a place of business where an article is sold that they know they will wish to purchase in the next few hours, and instead of stopping at the store and making the purchase, they will an hour afterward phone asking that the article, which may be only a ten or fifteen cent purchase, be delivered to their home.

The merchant of course answers very courteously that the delivery will be made, and it is made. Imagine the purchase is a pair of fifty-cent scissors, and that upon receipt of the scissors they are found not to be the kind wanted, so a request of Mr. Merchant is made to call and get the scissors that are not suitable and leave in their stead a pair of a different style.

The merchant finally makes the sale, and at the end of thirty days is paid for the scissors. He made a sale, but after counting the first cost of the article and the expense of time consumed in phoning, making selections, delivering, posting in his books and entering upon statement, the transaction was done at a loss.

In the average store a man is kept busy answering the phone, giving information as to prices and merits of articles for sale. If the buying public would have sufficient forethought to bunch their purchases and instead of giving a seventy-five cent order every day, give a $5 order every five or ten days, the merchant would not be placed at so much expense to make the deliveries, and the result would be finally he would be able to sell goods at a lower price, for his expense of doing business will be less. The present method of doing business is connected with a burdensome expense and the purchasing public is responsible for it.

A DECLINE IN DOLLARS

Fewer Americans today are famous for wealth than since the Civil War. Accumulated dollars bring men less in the way of honor than they have brought Americans for fifty years. The rich man who has nothing but wealth to commend him gets less consideration in America in any line of endeavor—politics, religion, business, art, science or education—than he has received in a generation. Men used to bow and scrape to a fool who was rich; today a rich fool is just a fool. Money is depreciating. They will get more of this world's valuable things than any other time in America for two generations.—William Allen White.

SKELETONS TO BE SUBJECT OF INVESTIGATION

According to a report emanating from Topango canyon, representatives from the University of California are expected there soon to make an anthropological investigation of the 25 Indian skeletons recently unearthed there by county road men. The find is considered of scientific importance due to a number of unusual features, the shape of the skeletons, etc.

AGAIN WE THANK YOU

Again the management of the Evening News takes occasion to thank the people of the Glendale community who so kindly contribute news items and accounts of social events to the Evening News.

A newspaper is just what the publisher and the subscribers make it. The Evening News is equipped to give excellent service if the financial support will permit of such service.

$20000 IN BUILDING PERMITS

The building permits in round numbers issued by the building inspector in Glendale for the month of June amounted to $20,000, a very good showing considering the condition of the times.

The $20000 only represents what is paid the contractor usually. There is grading and other necessary work to be done on the premises that costs the owner of the property considerable more money than the amount named in the permit.

SUCCESS IN LIFE

I should never have made my success in life had I not bestowed upon the least thing I have ever undertaken the same attention and care that I have bestowed upon the greatest.—Charles Dickens.

ELK HERD ON MOVE

GLENDALE UNIFORMED BAND AND PATROL OF 200 WILL MARCH IN PARADE

One of the best opportunities to advertise Glendale will be offered the citizens of this place during the coming week, when the visiting Elks, with their accompanying friends, will invade this section of the country. These brethren will visit Glendale and spend some time here. Just how many of them will come here cannot be estimated, but out of the many thousands who will be in Los Angeles Glendale may expect a very large contingent.

It is expected that on Thursday there will be 25,000 brethren in the parade. On Monday, July 12, Glendale will be visited by a large body who will come here from Pasadena, where a luncheon has been arranged for them in the grounds of the Hotel Green. This party will consist of prominent Elks from all parts of the country. They will be entertained by the local lodge, which will keep open house till midnight.

To convey that large body from Pasadena to Glendale will be quite a strain on the resources of the brethren in Pasadena and Glendale. It is requested that all citizens of Glendale who have autos that can be put at the service of the visitors will be good enough to offer them for that purpose. It is important that a good impression be made on the visitors. Plans have been made to take the whole party about Glendale in order that they may see the many advantages this city has to offer settlers.

Lodge No. 99 of Los Angeles has, with characteristic generosity, donated the white uniforms of its own band to the Glendale municipal band. The band of No. 99 will now be attired in grey. The white uniforms thus obtained will make a fine showing when the Glendale municipal band heads the Glendale contingent of 200 uniformed brethren who will march in the parade on Thursday.

Thursday's parade will be the great event of the week as far as parades go. It is estimated that the single division in which the Glendale Elks will march will take two hours passing. The parade will begin at 10 a. m. and will not be over till about 2 p. m. All the drill teams and uniformed patrols from every Elk lodge in the United States will be represented.

Quite a street fete will be given in Glendale on Monday afternoon when the visiting Elks arrive here. The band will play on the street and quite a pleasant reception will be held there and in the Elks' clubrooms. The public are asked to aid in making matters pleasant.

Already the Elks are beginning to arrive in large numbers in Los Angeles. The grand officers of the Grand Lodge arrived this morning.

CROP NOTES

The peach committee organized at Fresno to look into the dried fruit situation and make arrangements to take over the 1914 crop unsold and try to find a market for it, reports that its hands are tied, because the packers hold the greater part of the crop and show no disposition to cooperate with the committee in its efforts to find a profitable market. It asked to be discharged.

Good prices are being offered for the fresh grapes of the 1915 crop, state advices to the Sacramento Bee from Yuba City, Sutter county. For Thompson seedless grapes $17.50 to $20 a ton is being offered. The price last year was $13 to $15 a ton. Some contracts for raisins have been closed at 5½ to 6½ cents a pound.

Reports from Banning are that the almond crop in that district gives every promise of being one of the best ever grown there. Reports from almond growers at the annual meeting of the Banning Almond Growers' association show that there will be a large tonnage handled this year. Reports for the past year made up a remarkably good record.

It is announced from Pomona that the local canning factories have reopened for the summer run. The new Pomona Valley Canning company announces that it will start with a daily capacity of 60,000 cans. More than 500 expert fruit slicers and machine operators will be employed in this one establishment and the estimated cost of labor for the summer run is $30,000. The apricot crop is heavy, but the fruit is not as smooth as expected, so the pack will probably not be above the average. The peach crop is about an average, but the size of the pack is in doubt as the canners report but few advance orders.

England is to import yarns from the United States. It is exporting a lot of highly colored yarns itself.

CHILDREN AT LIBRARY

ONE HUNDRED LITTLE ONES LISTEN WITH INTEREST TO STORY OF LONGFELLOW

Children's hour at the Glendale Public Library yesterday was an event of some importance judging by the 100 eager faces of the little ones who had come out to hear the story of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The New England poet has always been a favorite with children. He is essentially the poet of the family and the home. His affections centered round his own family and never wandered from that scene of domestic love.

Longfellow understood children; consequently children understood him. His language is simple and unaffected. Whether he tells of the "skipper's little daughter" who went down with the schooner Hesperus or of the "youth who bore 'mid snow and ice the banner with the strange device—Excelsior," Longfellow is always dramatically simple and close to the heart of humanity.

Mrs. Danford, the librarian, was particularly happy in her exposition of the poet and his poems. She had interesting pictures to show the children of Longfellow himself, his old colonial home at Cambridge, Mass., and of his three daughters, of whom the poet wrote so charmingly:

"From my study I see in the lamplight,
Descending the broad hall stair,
Grave Alice and laughing Allegra
And Edith with golden hair."

To see how interested the children were in the picture of the three little girls and also of Longfellow's birthplace at Portland, Me., and of the old arm chair made out of the wood of chestnut trees, presented to him by American children, was very pleasing. The story of "Evangeline," too, seemed to possess a special charm for the children.

After the study was over the children immediately endeavored to secure some of Longfellow's works; but while some were successful there were not copies sufficient to supply the demand. The eagerness of the children, however, shows the value of Wednesday morning literary talks and studies and the idea may yet be extended. Mrs. Danford takes personal interest in the work and she is ably aided by Miss Scott.

OSTEOPATHS IN CONVENTION

This is the year of conventions for California. The two expositions attracted a great number of the great gatherings of the year and Los Angeles has been equally successful in securing the attendance of many of the most important gatherings of the year. Not the least important of them is the convention of osteopaths that opened its sessions this morning in the Alexandria hotel.

This order of medicine has fought its way forward to ample recognition through much opposition. It is now recognized as a valuable department of the medical schools of the world. Much interesting matter is expected to be made public at the coming sessions; the technique of osteopathy will be discussed and an attempt made to standardize the phraseology and nomenclature of the school.

Another Convention Due

Another convention is due in Los Angeles shortly after the Elks bring their gigantic gathering to a close. The International Typographical union will hold its annual meeting in what is now becoming known as "the convention city" toward the end of July. This organization has more than 56,000 members and practically every town of any size in California is represented in its ranks. Delegates from every portion of the United States, Honolulu, Cuba, Canada, etc., will be in attendance.

NEWSPAPER ADS LEAD ALL

Newspaper advertisting leads all other forms of printed salesmanship, delegates to the newspaper conference of the convention of the Associated Advertising clubs of the world were told.

A gasp of astonishment came from the audience when Wm. A. Thompson, director of the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, said that newspapers of the United States carry $250,000,000 worth of advertising annually.

"This is more than forty per cent of all the money spent in all forms of advertising and is over four times as much as that carried by the nearest competing medium," said Mr. Thompson.

Glendale merchants should consider the above statement and ask themselves why they do so little newspaper advertising when there is so much done in the business world.

LOS ANGELES MAN BUYS GLENDALE PHARMACY

S. S. Elliott of Los Angeles purchased the Glendale Pharmacy located at 592 W. Broadway, opposite the City Hall, from J. J. Freeman last week. The new owner of this popular drug store is a druggist of thirty years experience, and prior to coming to Glendale was engaged in business in Los Angeles for the past five years. The policy of the new management will be to serve their patrons in a courteous and efficient manner with quality drugs and merchandise and, compete with Los Angeles cut-rate stores. The free motorcycle delivery will be continued and two experienced prescription men will be constantly at the store to carefully fill all prescriptions—which department of the store will especially cater to the discerning public. Mr. Freeman, the former owner, hasn't fully decided what line of business he will enter.

FORENOON PORCH PARTY

Mrs. Blake Franklin, 1498 W. Third street, gave a porch party, Wednesday morning, in honor of Mrs. J. H. Franklin, Lawton, Oklahoma, and Miss Zeta Franklin, Bellingham, Wash. The porch was prettily decorated with flags and streamers of red, white and blue. There was a profusion of Shasta dasies and potted plants. The time was pleasantly spent in a guessing contest, which took the form of a "puzzle menu." Mrs. Dale won the prize. A reading, several vocal numbers and piano solos were delightfully rendered. Refreshments were served.

Those present were: Mrs. E. H. Willisford, Mrs. Minnie Patterson, Mrs. Lyons, Sr., Mrs. E. C. Dale, Mrs. R. W. Foss, Mrs. R. V. Chappell, Mrs. Peters, Mrs. Von Oven, Mrs. Mabel Ocker, Mrs. F. R. Frazee, Mrs. J. H. Franklin, Miss Alice Patterson, Miss Dale, Miss Zeta Franklin.

Farming means skilled labor. It is a calling that requires either natural adaptability or special training if it is to be pursued successfully. "Everybody" cannot farm. It is not a vocation particularly designed for those that seem capable of earning a living in no other way. Farming is a business, not a makeshift. When carried on ignorantly and loosely it fails; when carried on intelligently it succeeds, like other legitimate business.—Christian Science Monitor.

Morally considered, the wiping out of Mexicali seems to have been an excellent stroke.

CONDITIONS IN VERDUGO PARK

In Verdugo park, Glendale has a public asset that is doing it great credit and is making its attractions as a picnic resort known far and wide about Los Angeles and its vicinity. The true perspective of the park as a valuable adjunct to the city cannot be easily realized by those who have not visited its pleasing shades. It is therefore to be hoped that ere long all the public bodies concerned in seeing Glendale grow in attractiveness to the outside public will endeavor to visit this resort; then by joining forces on this subject and uniting their influence they can make the park just what a city like Glendale desires.

Apropos of a proposal to close off the beautiful running Verdugo stream that is the chief asset of the park, it might be well for those who are anxious to see Glendale possess everything in the way of public amenities that it can possibly obtain to consider if something cannot be done to co-operate with the Los Angeles and Arizona Land company, the Glendale-Montrose Railway company and Mr. W. A. Hail, the manager of the park, to preserve this striking feature in all its natural beauty to the public of Glendale and also to the visiting public.

This park is within the limits of Glendale, which has no other public park. It is easily reached by foot or by car. It is widely known as may be seen from the names of visiting societies published in this issue of the Glendale Evening News taken from a few days' list. It adds to the advertising value of city property. It is a great natural beauty and should be preserved and handled with care.

Surely the proper thing to do is for all the interested societies and corporations and the city trustees to get together and to endeavor to enhance the natural attractions of this spot and to add to its value as a public resort. By taking interest of this nature in the park and by helping Mr. Hail in his efforts to run it properly, Verdugo Park may be made beautiful with fountains and other conveniences that will keep the park in first-rate order, preserve the purity of the stream and add to the general value of this famous outing resort.

WOMEN IN PEACE CONGRESS

Believing in the truth of Christ's saying, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God," the International Conference of Women Workers to Promote Permanent Peace, held their first general meeting in San Francisco, July 5, with many dramatic accompaniments. There is no doubt those women are in earnest. They have cause to be. Some of them have lost relatives in the wicked war that is devastating Europe and others wait in the expectancy of horror to hear any moment that they have been bereaved of those they love.

From Britain, from Belgium, from France, from Germany and other European countries the delegates voiced their hatred of war and their determination to bring about permanent and world-wide peace. One significant note in the harmony of nations was sounded by the British delegate, who said that no peace advocate in Britain wants peace until the wrongs of Belgium shall have been righted. How this is to be done consistently with the desire of the congress for peace is a question that may severely tax the ingenuity of the delegates.

Judging the congress and its aims from a disinterested point of view, no one can fail to sympathize with the international women in their desire to put an end to war forever. The women of the world have always suffered most from war. They have been left behind, too often, without sustenance to wage the battle of life alone. Think of the millions of bereaved families in Europe at the present moment! What can be substituted for a father's care in the family? How much does the poor mother lose when she loses the bread-winner?

Listen to that voice of lamentation that welled up from the tender heart of Countess Dumas, who broke into a wild burst of tears as she tried to tell what the war means to the women of France. The tender-hearted Frenchwoman comes of a brave family, one that has given to the republic the blood of its very heart. Her husband, Count Dumas, now in the trenches, is a grandson of Alexander Dumas, the famous novelist, himself a brave man and son of one of those gallant generals who lived and fought through the awful period of the French revolution and the days of terror that succeeded it. There is no question of courage here.

These people are tired of the ancient, senseless method of settling international disputes by bloodshed that leaves nothing settled but lays foundations for future wars. The voices of those women must be heard. In ages past women accepted the inevitable and war went on without protest. In these days of enlightenment the women of the world are no longer content to acquiesce in iniquities and if anything can stop war, it should surely be the voice of those many Rachels who are weeping for their children and who cannot be comforted.

This is one of the world's movements. It is modern in its outlook and modern in its methods; therefore the world is looking anxiously and expectantly to this conference for some practical suggestion that may show the way out of the European impasse and ultimately lead the nations of the world to learn war no more.

Eastern papers decline to believe that the aurora borealis interfered with the telegraph out here recently. They ascribe the story to a publicity bureau. If any bureau is able to paint the northern heavens it has an advertising scheme that is going to knock the billboard flat.

The view that Russia is now through fighting does not seem to be shared by the people of that country.

There is no gem on earth quite so precious as good health.

I observe that old men seldom have any advantage of new discoveries, because they are beside the ways of thinking to which they have been so long used: Resolved: If ever I live to years, that I will be impartial to hear the reasons of all pretended discoveries, and receive them if rational, how long soever I have been used to another way of thinking.—Jonathan Edwards.

Stage ambitions not always are futile. An actor of note is about to be made president of a brewery.

J. STITT WILSON COMING

(Contributed)

J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley is known from one end of the state to the other as an exceptionally eloquent and entertaining speaker. Glendale will be given an opportunity to hear him for the first time at the high school auditorium, Monday evening, July 12 at 8 p. m.

Just now Mr. Wilson is speaking with more intense power and earnestness than ever before. One secret of his power is his profound conviction of the truth of what he utters. His subject is "The World's Present Crises" or as he sometimes puts it, "Christianity in Overalls" which he handles in a way that commands the intense interest of his audience.

Though not a party prohibitionist he is acknowledged on all sides to be the most powerful foe the liquor interests have in the state and in many of his speeches goes out of his way to deal them sledge hammer blows.

In his arraignment of the present order he says. "Capitalism is a robber system. It defrauds the poor, it exhausts and exploits the working, toiling multitudes; it monopolizes wealth and the resources of life in the presence of desperate human need. It is unjust, inhuman, it is mammon worship incarnate; nothing short of the burning, flaming, consuming fire of the word and will and power of God will be equal to the task of adequately impeaching this capitalistic system of its respectable iniquity and reconstructing a new social order based on social justice and human brotherhood.

Everybody will be welcome at the meeting next Monday night.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

The Women's Auxiliary of the First Congregational church will hold its regular business meeting tomorrow, in the form of an outdoors picnic, at the home of Mrs. A. L. Smith, 308 N. Adams. Take the Montrose car; get off at Oak street; walk one block east to Adams. All women and their friends are invited to bring their lunch, also needles and thread and have a good time while they work together.

BUILDING LAWS FOR THE IMPERIAL VALLEY

The need of a building ordinance requiring solid and substantial construction is one of the most important lessons to be learned from the results of the earthquake which recently occurred in the Imperial valley. With a progressive spirit to be commended the communities in that section are setting to work to rebuild and repair the fire and quake damage in a more substantial manner, says the Los Angeles Builder and Contractor. Practically every city in the valley will adopt a building ordinance at once which will embody the principles of standard construction and will insure the erection of better buildings.

Following the lead of Calexico, the city of El Centro has engaged the commission of Los Angeles architects and contractors to make a professional survey of the damage done in that city and recommendations for rebuilding. The commission is composed of George E. Bergstrom, Albert C. Martin and J. A. Crook, and completed its survey of the damage at Calexico last week. In addition to the recommendations for the repair and reconstruction of individual buildings, the official report of the commission contained the following excellent advice:

"We find the greatest part of the damage was due to faulty methods of construction. The lack of proper anchoring of floor and ceiling joists to roof rafters to the masonry, the lack of proper bonding of masonry, the lack of bonding iron or steel in the masonry over the openings and at the corners, and the poor quality of the mortar, combined with a failure to keep the masonry material wet until the mortar has set, were responsible for at least 90 per cent of the damage done by the earthquake.

"We earnestly recommend that you frame a simple building ordinance for your city, embodying therein a few standards of building materials and methods of construction and follow this up with an honest inspection of the buildings built under this ordinance. If this ordinance be kept simple, but ample enough to cover the ordinary materials and problems of construction, and the inspection be strict, we can assure you that you need never fear another earthquake like the present one, unless these quakes be far more violent. Use good cement in the lime mortar, wet the masonry and keep it wet, bond the masonry, anchor the walls together, anchor the floors, ceilings, roofs and partitions through the masonry.

"These are construction points to be covered in your new ordinance. Cover in your ordinance a few simple fire preventive methods. You can then go forward to build up your city, feeling that you have insured good, safe construction and a reasonable insurance against general fire loss."

A free reading-room is maintained by First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Glendale, at 415½ Brand boulevard, and is open daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 12 m. to 4 p. m., and on Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30.
